Abstract: At present, with the continuous progress of science and technology in our country, our country is constantly paying attention to and reforming education, and education occupies an increasingly important position. Teachers should also change their own education mode according to the development of society, and then create a teaching method that adapts to the development of society, and change the previous teaching methods. This kind of teaching mode is paid more and more attention in the education development industry, and it is also widely used in teaching. The new teaching mode requires teachers to create learning videos themselves, and students can watch videos freely. When returning to school, the teacher leads the students to deal with problems and communicate with each other, and evaluates this communication. This paper explores and analyzes the new teaching mode in the process of English teaching, and puts forward some effective measures to improve English teaching.

Keywords: teaching mode; English teaching; effective strategy

1. Introduction

In the current social stage, besides Chinese mathematics, English is becoming more and more important and occupies a major position. English can strengthen communication with other countries and promote exchanges between China and foreign countries. However, teachers only care about their own teaching, which leads to students' inability to study independently. In today's society, everything is diverse. Therefore, in the development of education, we should not only use the previous teaching mode but also change the teaching methods according to the development of society. With the rapid development of society, network information technology has become the theme of the present era. The transformation of teaching has changed people's quality of life. We should choose the education that adapts to the market economy for teaching. In order to solve the problems in English teaching, we should change the teaching mode and find ways to help students learn.

2. The problems in traditional English teaching

2.1 Single teaching method

At present, many schools in China still use previous teaching methods to teach classes. Most schools still use the traditional teaching mode, which has a single teaching content and is not conducive to students' effective learning. With the continuous development of education, teachers use information technology to teach, but the methods are rather old, which makes students uninterested. However, the fundamental reason is that the content of knowledge is relatively simple, and teachers only teach students the key vocabulary, grammar and so on. Make students only learn the words, but can not use them to understand the meaning of grammar and sentences. English words should be used in grammatical sentences. At present, more teachers just collect ready-made English materials directly, and then broadcast them directly in the form of multimedia. Teachers don't make any changes to the materials they have found, and they teach them intact. Teachers change the use of teaching tools, but they don't change the knowledge content. Teachers ignore that students are the main body. Teachers should be based on students. Therefore, English teaching in higher vocational colleges needs to update the previous teaching methods, change the new teaching mode, cultivate students' interest in learning English, and improve their learning initiative. Thereby strengthening students' autonomous learning abilities (Zhen, 2022).

2.2 Lack of enthusiasm for learning

The student's academic performance is relatively poor, their learning foundation is a little poor, and they don't have enough interest in learning, which leads to poor learning results. Most students think that English is a very difficult subject, and they can not learn English even if they listen to it differently, and their English scores are very poor in every exam. Most students can not memorize words so that an English sentence appears, they can not understand the meaning of the sentence at all. Over time, learning English is a very difficult thing. At the same time, most students lack persistence in learning, usually do not pay attention to the accumulation of English words, and are not very proficient in grammar. That there are so many people who can not understand it, so it's easy to understand. After entering university, most students have no strong control and can not restrain themselves. Always don't listen carefully in class, and always don't pay attention. As a result, nothing was learned in the whole learning process. Whenever you don't get good results in the exam, teachers will put forward exam-oriented education to students, forcing them to study, which leads to more conflict with English learning. Therefore, educators should try their best to innovate teaching forms to help students learn completely.

3. An Effective Method to Improve the Application of Flip Classroom Mode in Higher Vocational English Teaching

3.1 Preparing the study video before class.

The new teaching mode is that teachers should prepare teaching videos in advance before class, and the teaching videos are made themselves. The videos made by teachers themselves have enough understanding, and they should be realistic to make videos according to students' classroom state. It can help students study better. In the process of video production, video producers should pay attention to the timing of the video. As students only have 15 minutes to concentrate in each class, teachers must make good use of these 15 minutes. Compared with other subjects, English is a little more difficult, but it is also very easy to learn English well as long as you master good methods. English should focus on the cultivation of context. In the video about learning English, the video producer can insert some interesting pictures to create the context when making the video. Let students be interested in the video. When watching the video, you can concentrate your thoughts and guide students to observe English words with full attention. At the same time, you can also practice listening well, which is helpful to improve your English ability. When learning independently, ask the teacher if you do not understand, and the teacher will explain it in time. After watching English videos, students can communicate with each other. Share learning experiences with each other. In class, we should finish the tasks assigned by teachers in time, and apply our skills to practical work (Wen, 2022).

3.2 Encouraging interaction between teachers and students.

In the process of learning English, students should put forward knowing that they can not know by watching videos, teachers should solve problems in time, and teachers should update their previous teaching methods, instead of blindly teaching students knowledge, they should actively guide students' subjective initiative, help students occupy the dominant position in the classroom, and cultivate students' independent learning ability. And encourage students to exchange ideas with each other. Improve students' autonomous learning ability, and guide students to solve problems according to their own learning knowledge. Organize students to participate in various activities. After the students discuss the results, the teacher should evaluate the student's learning achievements in time. Teachers should put forward the purpose of learning tasks for students according to the effect of students' autonomous learning (Wang, 2022).

3.3 Strengthening the new teaching concept.

The new teaching mode can effectively speed up the development of the education industry. The new teaching mode aims at the preview before class, and it is necessary to discuss independently in the learning process. In the previous teaching process, students attended lectures by themselves and then did exercises after class. Flipping the classroom exercises students' autonomous learning process more. This new teaching method is better than the previous one, and the learning efficiency is also obviously improved. It can be helpful to apply students' own knowledge to practice. Stimulate students' interest in learning, guide students to communicate with each other, and encourage them to express their opinions. The new teaching mode pays more attention to students' learning process than the previous teaching mode. As a guide to students, teachers should deal with the difficulties encountered by students in time and guide them. Help to improve student's learning ability.

3.4 Establishing the awareness of cultivating students' autonomy

New teaching methods can help students learn well, while traditional teaching methods teach students knowledge, which leads to students' lack of independent ability. Therefore, students can not get good learning results, and they don't have much interest in learning. The new teaching mode is that teachers make videos themselves, students watch videos independently for learning, communicate with students after watching, and discuss with each other interactively. Finally, teachers solve problems and difficulties. Students can study over and over again until they have learned to listen. For students with poor learning, the effect is relatively good. The new teaching mode has changed the shortcomings in the teaching process and further promoted the student's learning and development (Liang, 2021).

4. Conclusion

To sum up, China attaches great importance to education. The old teaching methods are no longer suitable for teaching, and the new teaching mode can help students learn well. Therefore, the new classroom teaching mode is advocated in the process of English teaching. In the process of learning English, there will also be some problems, and teachers should solve them pertinently. Students should choose their own learning methods, which can help improve their learning ability. The new learning mode can accelerate the development of English teaching. The teaching videos created by teachers themselves adapt to the current learning situation of students. With the rapid development of society, the new teaching mode has promoted the development of education. It also strengthens the study of English.
